Bloodmobile is coming

"Helping Hand" is sponsoring a bloodmobile between the hours of 1 to 7 p.m., Monday. April 26 at the Community Methodist Church, 11160 Olive Street in Romulus.

During the past 10 years, the organization has been able to get donors to donate 857 pints of blood and they now are within approximately 150 pints of reaching the 1,000 mark.

"This is a joint venture between St. Al's and The Helping Hand," a spokesman said. "It has been very successful in the past and we're hoping that the communitywide drive will help bring us to the 1000 mark next week."

Romulus' Gil White is one of the "givingest donors" around. White recently was awarded the coveted "25 Gallon Pin".

Further information may be obtained by telephoning 941-3435.

Juan sees council in action

An 18-year-old foreign exchange student from Bogata. Colombia saw democracy at work first hand last week. Juan Carlos Roa was introduced to the Romulus City Council during its last meeting.

Roa, who is staying with his host family, the Daniel Bales', is sponsored by the Rotarians and is in this country to learn and study "all I can about America".

The shy, good-looking, dark-haired young lad has some problems with his English now, but you can bet he'll iron out the kinks before he returns to Colombia.

Sharks seek swimmers

The Sharks are looking for Romulus swimmers who want to compete in AAU age group competition.

Coaches Wehremeister and Lori Hubbard will hold tryouts for the team at 4 p.m., April 19 at Taylor Kennedy High School

Further information may be obtained by telephoning Bud Stenton at 941-1762 or Ralph Rotondo at 941-3395.

Lion's share

When it comes to helping the handicapped, Romulus' Lions' Club members have done a "lion's share" of their work. Since April 23 to May 2 has been designated as the 1982 White Cane Week, Romulus Mayor William Oakley paused to pay tribute to the hundreds of local and thousands of national Lion's Clubs whose work is to help the blind. The mayoral tribute was in the form of a proclamation, and on hand for the signing of the document was Robert Major, President of the local Lions

No strings attached

Attorney donates 33 acre parcel of land to Romulus

Stating that he would like "to see the land developed into a park" and that "there were no strings attached", attorney Jack W. Perlman donated a parcel of land estimated at 33 acres to the city of Romulus.

Romulus City Council was at first reluctant, but accepted the gracious offer after a debate in Council chambers last week.

In his communique to the city, Perlman stated: "It is our desire to donate this property to your city to be used for a park, other community purposes or as your city deems

"The property is owned by us free and clear of any liens or encumbrances and all real estate taxes are paid in full," Perlman wrote.

Perlman owns approximately 37 acres of land of which 33 were offered to the city. The land in question is located at the northwest corner of Ecorse and Cogswell Rds., and "is prime land for development", according to city officials.

Councilman Barry Baumann questioned whether it would be wise to accept the parcel since it was generating about $10,000 in tax re-

"I have contacted the assessor's office and I was told the parcel of land produced $10,000 a year in city taxes. I would like to see the land develop into some sort of industrial park, but I would like to refer this back to the Mayor for the administration's recommendation.'

City Treasurer said that tax revenues to the city from the parcel were more like $2,000 than $10,000 because other governmental bodies also receive their shares of tax monies. But she asked: "The parcel of land over there is about 37.4 acres, and I'm just wondering what he (Perlman) is going to do with the other four acres.

"And the 33 acres would be landlocked," she added.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry saw the gift as an opportunity for the city to develop the land. "It (the land) isn't something we will be stuck with; it is a valuable piece of property.

"And I would like to see us proceed with developing the parcel," he noted.

Council accepted the gift and directed the administration to proceed with the legal work in order to gain possession of the property.

8.5 mill renewal

Voters to decide fate of Romulus schools

Voters in the Romulus School District will go to the polls on Monday to determine the fate of an 8.5 mill renewal tax package which school officials consider vital to the standards of education in this city.

However, a depressed economy and an angered electorate, recent recipients of some "bad news" in the form of property assessments, could jeopardize the vote.

"Most of the people are upset be-cause of their tax bill," said William Bedell, Superintendent of schools. 'And we understand that frustration. But the increase in evaluation didn't help the schools a Bedell explained the paradox in this way: "For every dollar that is collected because of the higher asessments, the state aid to the schools goes down the same amount. It's a very difficult situation, but if we got any of their (taxpayers' money) we would make a corresponding adjustment."

Romulus collects 36.15 mills (a rhill is one dollar of assessed evaluation) for operational purposes. That figure is considerably lower than those in surrounding communities.

We are between 2 to 5 mills lower than the other school districts," Bedell stressed. "What we're asking our people to do is to let us amount of money. If the millage isn't renewed, the community and, most importantly, the children of this community will be the losers."

Bedell explained that one of the reasons the local voters were requested to go to the polls in April was so that if the millage failed, we would have to have enough time to pink slip teachers.'

In the meantime, eight candidates have gathered for the annual school election which will be held June 14. Missing from the line-up are incumbents Michael Woods, who serves as president of the board, and trustee Theresa Kraft.

There are two 4-year terms and one 2-year term available. Incumbent Kenneth E. Berlinn will face challengers Ruth Johnson, Joseph

Witherow and James Shelton for the two-year term, while one of the three following candidates must be eliminated for the four-year term: Jack Bath, Mary King, or Edward

The next school year will be a crucial one for the Huron School Dis-

Like most districts, Huron is in the midst of transition, with declining enrollment and not enough funding to finance the various school programs and projects.

Huron will also lose its current Superintendent of Schools, Curtis Bartz, who has resigned to take a similar post with the River Rouge School District next fall.

Therefore, members of the next school board will have to be "problem solvers'

Two incumbents George Angel and Jacqueline Drengansky, will be asking voters to retain them on the board for another four years. They will be challenged by newcomers Ronald Tabor and Diana Kemeny in the annual school election scheduled for June 14.

Angel is completing his first 4year term with the board, while Ms. Dregansky was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Ed Umin, who was the president of the board.

Of the four, only two will be elected to fill the 7-member board of

When they bought their homes in many years ago, they were buying into a quiet residential area with a quiet neighbor, the Hawthorne Valley County Club.

However, the tranquility of the neighborhood could change, if the Westland City Council gives its approval of a site plan for the development of an indoor-outdoor amusement center at the now defunct golf course.

Westland Recreation Center Inc., which purchased the facility last October, has hopes of developing the 57-acre site as an amusement center, complete with an indoor arcade and restaurant and outdoor activities like mini-racers, a bumper boat pond, roller skating rink and miniature golf course.

Some work already has been completed on the former clubhouse, with the restaurant slated to open this month. However, site plan approval for the proposed changes the golf course council approval, and if residents of the adjoining subdivision have their way, the plan will be rejected-soundly.

'There are places for such developments," said Phil Thompson, chgairman of Hawthorne Valley Citizens Committee Inc., "A hundred miles from a residential area, but not in my backyard. That's inappropriate."

The citizens committee was formed to keep homeowners abreast of developments in the proposal, and it has drawn large crowds at three public hearings it held to air the proposal and to gather citizen input on why Westworld should not be allowed to become a reality.

Air Force seeks 1,000 area college grads for O.T.S.

The Air Force is seeking more than 1,000 college graduates or those soon to graduate to become officer and navigator trainees during the next 12 months according to SSgt Richard D. Rinehart, Air Force Recruiter.

Undergraduate navigator training begins after graduation from Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, near San Antonio, Texas. Classroom instruction at Mather AFB, near Sacramento, California, prepares the student with the fundamental principles of navigation.

Once the principles are mastered a computerized simulator-trainer, which has all the navigation posi-

A solution to world peace and harmony

East is east and west is west ... but occasionally, the twain

That was proven this month as the area Rotary clubs hosted six members of a study group from India. The purpose of the exchange, study of American business and industry by the men, was well served. Each of the men commented on the methods he had seen here while exchanging ideas and information with his American counterpart... but it would appear much more than that was accomplished.

While other community organizations are working for the good of the community and performing acts of civic and public service, those same deeds are met with rounds of publicity, lots of photos and names in the paper accompanied by the smiling faces of the members.

We hear constantly about the good work of this group or that one and publicity for their causes is a constant request. Not so with the Rotary. They very quietly conduct their meetings, bringing in one speaker or another and hosting visitors who are also Rotarians from around the world. They have probably accomplished more for world peace and understanding in their unobtrusive way than many diplomats lauded in the media.

As one of the exchange group members said, "Politicians exaggerate, diplomats exaggerate, but here we speak with the common man who tells the truth." And that truth is accepted and appreciated.

The efforts of the Rotary club in this and other exercises of world diplomacy should be appreciated by every one of us — and eventually we may all be touched by their efforts if only in a small way. They are attempting to provide a real picture of America and Americans to foreign visitors and also to spread a measure of world understanding and communication.

The study group members were received as friends and were regarded as honored visitors—but were treated as equals. The Indian men brought with them a real picture of life in a country most have never seen and knew nothing about - but the visit of living examples of their culture made a strong impact and statement on all who were fortunate enough to meet them.

While the purpose of the visit may have been for the six visitors to study Americans, the Americans learned as much or more from their visit. We are all human beings with concerns for our families, our businesses, our countries.

No matter how far the distance or how large the difference in culture, we really have a great deal in common.

Let's hope the Rotary keeps up the good work, for all of us.

Van Buren cutbacks won't jeopardize senior programs

We would like to clarify misunderstandings arising due to the reduction of working hours of the paid Senior Citizen Director by the Van Buren Board of Trustees.

Reduction of these hours DOES NOT eliminate or curtail any programs offered at the Township Hall for area senior citizens.

• The home delivered meals are under the upervision of the federal government NOT the township government.

 The subsidized lunch program for seniors served four days per week (Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday) is also under the federal government and will continue as long as there are 25 or more meals served per day. The senior discount program is at the discretion of local merchants and is in existence throughout the United States and is not the exclusive domain of area seniors • Any Internal Revenue Service (IRS) office will assist seniors in filing their tax forms. • The library program is not the exclusive right of the seniors. Library facilities are available to all residents.

• Field trips are under the supervision of volunteers or travel agencies and are open to all seniors who can afford them. The township has no control over these trips.

• The operating costs of two vans; one for the Van Buren Township Parks and Recreation and Seniors and one for the exclusive use of the seniors, have been underwritten by the township taxpayers. The latter will underwrite the operating cost of only one van.

· A free health screening program is offered by the People Community Hospital Authority (PCHA). The full screening includes vision, hearing, glaucoma, blood pressure, respiration and TB testing, plus breast exam, blood chemistry or urinalysis and iformation and counseling on a number of health subjects. For information call (313) 722-4400, ext. 365.

Membership in the Van Buren Township Senior Citizens' program (September Days) is open to all seniors in Van Buren Township, City of Belleville, Sumpter Township, Ypsilanti Township, Huron Township, etc.

an Buren Township voters approve a half-mill increase for the use of a senior citizens' program the program should be for senior residents of Van Buren Township only.

True, any senior citizens' program must have volunteers to continue but we are sure that if the present volunteers drop out of the program others will step in and continue to operate the senior citizens' activities at the Van Buren Township Hall.

The Van Buren Township Board is just trying to save taxpayers' money by rolling back the hours of the Senior Citizens' Director. We repeat, they are not eliminating or curtailing the programs offered to the senior residents.

We would also like to emphasize that many of the seniors who are adamantly protesting the action of the Van Buren Board are neither residents NOR taxpayers in Van Buren Township. The Van Buren Town Board appointed Ms. Mary Elizabeth Nichols as a paid director of the senior citizens' program in October 1976. The seniors met in St. Paul's Lutheran Church on West Columbia, City of Belleville. The area senior citizens' lunch program was instituted on November 29, 1976. The program moved to the Van Buren Township Hall in the winter of

'Little people' sick of paying those tax bills

Tom Mooradian Managing Editor

Wasn't it the philosopher William James who said that the chief value of life is that you do something that outlasts yours?

It sounds good, especially after April 15 when most of us have learned that we don't really have any value left - it all went to the IRS. Or Uncle Sam.

One could get mildly nauseated when one reads the paper and learns that major corporations get away from paying paying their fair share while the "average American" must depart with more than 30 to 40 percent of his paycheck.

But, again, one must feel fortunate that he is still employed.

However, there is a natural patriotism in most of us. We do it because the government tells us to do it. That WAS patriotism, wasn't it?

But if one would pause and read the piles of press releases crossing this desk nowadays, you'd soon realize that something is brewing. The property owners, the virtuosos paying the bills, are disenchanted; small business is going out of business and the largest corporations are begging their employees for concessions something unheard of in the history of this country.

One reader even urged me to ask our elected officials in Washington and Lansing to make some concessions to the public. "Why don't they cut their paychecks by 10 percent, just like the auto workers did?", this smartalecky reader wrote.

Most of us are ready to abandon ship, realizing that there are no lifeboats to carry us through and over the icy fiscal waters.

Then there was this accountant who mailed me a copy of a "United States Internal Revenue income tax form", crica 1865 - that's no typo, sirs, 1865. And he pointed out that the form was a one page deal and the IRS collected taxes on - now get this - "billard tables, kept for private use; carriages, valuation over $50 and not over $100; pianofortes, gold watches, silver plate and gold plate."

Now you must remember that 1865 was a war year. The North was just winding down and sending back the Rebels from whence they came.

And do you know how much the gentleman paid in taxes, according to the certificate? A hefty $75. Who said the good old days were Now back to William James.

Is there a man or woman out there who can lead this nation back to respectability? A man or woman who can put our people back in the employment lines and not in the dole lines? Who can even produce a feeble light of hope?

Oh, how eagerly we wait for 1984.

Hillenbrand Report

Street People-a million strong, whose problem are they?

(EDITOR'S NOTE-This is the conclusion of a two-part series about the thousands of 'street people' who have defected from society to create a sub culture, emerging in every city across the United States. The articles were written by contributing columnist Bernard F. Hillenbrand).

His "clients" sit on rickety folding chairs and old chintz sofas. Lax hands neatly folded, motionless, they stare into space with unblinking eyes. Scattered among 30 or 40 women are few wrinkled faces. Most are young, for at least one mental illness schizophrenia - attacks those in the early 20's. 'This is not therapy in the traditional sense," Farr wans. "Our clients will not use existing mental health services. It has taken months to establish credibility with them. We talk about how to avoid being raped. How to stay free of lice. What to eat. Eventually, we want to help these people understand the nature of their illness

'They are the most defenseless people I've ever seen. They are totally unable to ask for help.

There are people to help. Unfortunately, Mrs. Helverson's volunteers, along with the staff of other Skid Row missions, have little or no experience with mental illness.

So Farr is among the organizers of a new, interagency task force, the Concerned Agencies of Metropolitan Los Angeles (CAM-LA), that is mounting a cooperative effort to help homeless people. Similar groups are beginning in Washington D.C., Seattle,

New York and Philadelphia "Obviously, with the economy the way it is - we're not talking about starting any new programs," Farr said. "It costs about $5,000 to put one patient in an institution for two weeks. Why, I can help 50 people living down here for that much.'

And while CAMLA has not achieved any miraculous cures for the frightening nightmare of mental illness, it has taken a number of practical steps — of the humane sort — to improve the quality of life on Skid Row.

Monthly meetingas are attended by representatives of all agencies. This sounds like a technicality. In fact, during one session it was discovered that some facilities, such as sleeping quarters for men - were available in several locations, yet other needs, such as a delousing station for women, was sorely

Back at the social services office, meanwhile, a psychiatrist is now available to interview mentally ill clients. The doctors also certify people for disability payments from the federal Social Security program. Every disability case saves the county relief roll $225 a month.

The psychiatrists also issue low-cost passes on Los Angeles' buses, enabling street people to seek employment, housing or medical care outside Skid Row. A private hospital in another part of town has started treating some of them. And CAMLA is planning work projects at public facilities. "This will encourage the return of feelings of selfesteem to individuals who now see themselves as worthless and unproductive derelicts," Farr

The CAMLA group is also preparing a small, pocket-size directory of services. Its cost will be born by private industries and

Indeed, private sector contributions to life on Skid Row would make our President proud of his home town. There are organizations like the Salvation Army, traditionally supporting its services through secondhand shops operated by clients. There is an aerospace firm that donates the services of an alcoholism counselor. There is a food chain providing piles of fresh dough-

All these small efforts will come together late this year when the city and county open a converted hotel, the Weingart Rehabilitation Center, as a shelter. Over $8 million in public and private monies have been committed to the project. Originally designed to keep alcoholics out of jail, it will offer myriad services including detoxification.

True story. Skid row isn't just an exile for alcoholics anymore. Former residents of institutions, unsuccessful job seekers and the evicted come in greater numbers as the economy worsens. Those spared mental illness before becoming homeless soon suffer psychologically from the daily strain of seeking food, safety and It's enough to make the common wino resentful, now that he must share his turf. But that's HIS problem. Homelessness is a growing community concern. It's our problem — and there are things we can do about it.

Writer urges council to seek alternatives

EDITOR — I have hesitated long enough without speaking out and feel that I must do so at this time

Two things of utmost importance should be properly addressed by our Inkster City Council. First, with the very likelihood that we will be experiencing a "hot" summer, attributed in great part to Reaganomics, our City Council, in my opinion, is not taking proper steps to thwart or minimize its impact upon Inkster.

The decision to close the Malcolm X Center; to reduce recreational possibilities at the Inkster Recreation Complex; and to further jeopardize the citizenry by reducing the manpower of the Police Department, by nine persons, is clear evidence that poor judgment was exercised in City Hall.

If young people are denied recreational opportunities when employment is practically nonexistant, a clear possibility for trouble looms for Inkster.

Personally, I feel that the Police Department is the last place that cuts should occur under present conditions.

It costs several thousands of dollars to train and equip an officer. We train them in Inkster for the benefit of other communities, with very little job security for professional policemen in the City of Inkster. This has happened too often. How can such an irresponsible reduction be justified with the prospects for a "hot" summer.

If Inkster is in such dire financial condition, there are other remedies to be taken that would not affect Inkster's citizens so directly.

Why not lay-off certain officials, whose duties can be provided otherwise, and at less cost?

Since there are fewer federal dollars coming to the city, why not eliminate the positions of the Director, Community Development, and the Director of Planning and Building? Both activities can be serviced at less cost by utilization of fee consultants.

We did this for years, and developed a great portion of Inkster under such a system. For years the City Manager served as the Personnel Director.

Why not eliminate this office and staff, and give the Manager a minimal salary increase to handle these affairs? Additional savings can be real-

Additional savings can be realized by a repeat of a past practice of City Council, that is to force the retirement of some of those persons that are eligible, or nearly eligible for retirement. Some of these persons are dead weight, and block younger and more competent persons from advancement.

The city has had a recreation department for 43 years. It has been productive. It has also served as an effective deterrent to crime as an outlet for energies that otherwise might have been a problem for Inkster and its citizens.

Perhaps this is the only thing that Councilman Ernest Hendricks and I have agreed on in a long time, but I laud his efforts to preserve the Recreation Department

It appears that he stood alone in this endeavor. We have a Recreation Commission, and despite the fact that it is advisory only, on certain matters, it would seem that Council should have asked the Commission for a plan to maintain a decent recreational program. These members are more involved with the program than City Council. They should have been directly involved in the final decision. Citizens and organizations might have joined together to preserve this much needed program if their input had been sought.

Even if my suggestions are not utilized by City Council, I hope that more appropriate thought and action will be generated to correct what I identify as panic, poor planning, and illogical thought. Despite the fact that there are a few sensitive and practical minds among our City Councilmen, I evaluate the overall performance of City Council as dismal, disappointing, and devastating when related to the interests of the Citizens of Inkster.

Westland C of C receives praise

EDITOR — The Westland Department of Assessment and Economic Development would like to extend its thanks to the Chamber of Commerce for their continued support of Economic Development Activities within the community.

In the past year and a half, the Chamber staff and its members have participated in many programs including Ford Road Task Force, Industrial Trade Show and various fund-raisers.

Most recently, the Chamber unexpectedly received numerous phone calls from tax payers regarding property assessment notices. The staff reacted immediately by obtaining current information, as well as directing residents to contact the Assessor's office for specific complaints.

Chamber members serve on the Westland Advisory Commission for Economic Development and provide input to the City administration and Council on planning decisions regarding new development.

The Chamber staff, in their office on Ford Road, provide a daily resource and referral service for both residents and businessmen alike. The Department commends the Chamber for its active role in the community.

I encourage all businesses to join and support the Chamber as a means to ensure the continued growth and vitality of the City and to serve as a forum for business leaders to voice their concerns.

Criticism on 'Downtown Wayne'

EDITOR — In your recent article, "Downtown Plan Could Get Nod by Mid-April", my neighbors and I were quite surprised to see that "There were no major objections to the project" and would like to respond to that statement.

Before we begin, however, we would like to commend Councilman Kurt M. Heidmann for his concern about our tax money and interests

Considering the present economy and past history of failure in the development of a shopping center, it seems unrealistic to even consider such a venture at this time.

First, let's put the economic climate of this area into perspec-

So many people have had to sell homes and belongings at a loss that Michigan might be dubbed the flea-market State.

Further, it has been predicted that our factories may stand as grave-markers against the land-scape showing what had been to future generations. There was a time also when the mining and lumbering barons could not have conceived of their ultimate downfall but it happened.

Now we are experiencing a similar downfall for the auto industry and its barons. Business would have us think otherwise but thousands of troubled households provide evidence to the contrary.

Is this a proper time for expan-

We think not, no more so than an unemployed worker can think of going out to buy a new car or a new house.

If Wayne could not make it as a business venture during a period of prosperity, how can we possibly anticipate success during a recession /depression?

We, too, wish that we had even one chain store (K-Mart, Sears, Wards, Penneys). We wish that we need drive only from Van Born and Merriman to Michigan Ave. to shop instead of to Warren and Wayne Road (Westland) but necessity has dictated thus and we've learned to live with it. The situation reflects a lack of development expertise which is unfortunate in a community of this

If the companies and individuals involved in this plan stand ready to put their money where their mouths are — and not one penny of ours — all well and good and we'll even wish them luck. However, let it be their risk, not ours. These bandaids haven't worked in the past and we doubt they'll do the job now.

A better economy might provide some options down the road apiece — time will tell.

FOCUS facts disputed

EDITOR — Please consider the following for the reader opinion section of the Eagle: The following is in response to FOCUS on Education, April 1, 1982 issue...

In this edition of FOCUS, a brochure printed by Wayne-Westland School District, I would like to respond to the question "In these tough economic times, have Wayne-Westland employees taken any concessions?" The answer given was as follows: "Yes, clearly there have been concessions. In the contract recently extended, the teachers (1) continued to defer their COLA payments, (2) gave up an early retirement program, and (3) accepted more layoffs instead of a job security clause."

Continued to defer their COLA payments - How can this be a concession? It's the same as it was in the previous contract - nothing different. The teachers did not give up anything in this area.

Gave up early retirement - I attended a recent School Board meeting when eight teachers were approved for retirement under this program. At that time the administration stated that this was the end of this program. Furthermore, it states right in the teachers' contract book that at which point this program becomes ineffective (or too costly), it would cease to be. Is this a concession? No, it's not.

Accepted more layoffs instead of a job security clause - Let's look at this one. Accepted more layoffs instead of a job security clause - does that make sense? If you were offered job security would you turn it down for more layoffs? I understand it to be that the Teachers Association was offered a 7-9 raise and more layoffs or no raise and no layoffs as stated at a Board Meeting.

It appears to me that if there is room to cut staff because of declining enrollment, etc., do it. Why should taxpayers have to pay for staff if they are excessive. It appears to me that the information printed in the FOCUS article is another form of deception in this School District. It is clear to anyone who examines this information that the teachers did not make the concessions stated in FOCUS.

Sincerely,
MICHAEL MILLER

Sign ordinance shows progress

EDITOR — I want to thank all the officials of Canton Township who voted for the new sign ordinance. I am not a businessman in Canton, but I've lived here 17 years and realize who butters my bread when it comes to the taxes they pay.

Many of the business people probably reside in another city, but they pay a lot of taxes to keep our schools and township running. I feel that the new sign ordinance is just one way of thanking these people for what they have done for us.

And, hopefully, it may bring more business to these people who have carried more than their share of the tax burden.

True Love

There's only one person Who's love is so dear I can think of no other I'd rather have near.

It gives me such pleasure That happiness thrives With every encounter Relationship ties.

For, without this endearing Bright charm that I feel, No magical gift of my life Would be real.

Everywhere over the land That I go, I can always have with me Someone to know. The greatest advantage With love such as mine, Is to share it with others Most of the time.

There's no other company Time is well spent Than to be in God's presence In any event.

If He's not that person That you love the most, Then nowhere is anyone Worthy to boast.

Reflections

Who's afraid of Madeline O' Hair?

HEMET, CALIF. — A group of my sister's friends gathered to wish us bon voyage on our journey tomorrow to Boise, Idaho. With the clatter of knives and forks and tinkling ice we talked of many things and everyone was talking at once, the way women do, when someone said, "Do you know what Madeline Murray O'Hair is doing now?"

No one knew so Loutold them

No one knew, so Lou told them.
"Madeline Murray O'Hair is trying to get all television stations to refrain from having anything religious showing at any time." she said.

While the others discussed this I found myself feeling a little bit of hot anger surging through me, because I have never been able to explain satisfactorily to myself why this woman, this Madeline Murray O'Hair, was successful in imposing HER will on millions of Americans.

Maybe there are lots and lots of lpeople who LIKE having the Bible read in the schools. Should those who like it have to give in to those who find it reprehensible? And why is it right for the Biblereading lovers to dfeny their rights so that the non-Biblereading lovers to deny their full rights? Who is right,

I have always felt that since this country was founded and acclaimed a CHRISTIAN nation, then those who cannot accept Christianity should not feel they have more right to impose their beliefs than the accepting Christians.

Madeline Murray O'Hair

claims that prayers and Bible reading in the schools is non-constitutional. I'm sure the founding fathers weren't even thinking about a couple of Bible verses and a short little prayer first thing in the morning as being against the concept of the separation of church and state.

Besides how many kids listen to the Bible verses and the prayer? When I was a little kid I remember watching my teacher tapping a pencil against a huge diamond set in a white gold basket ring, as she read the Bible verses. And I can even remember what I thought. I thought those diamonds would look better on my fingers than on her little short, fat hands.

Bsides all that this particular teacher had a fat little voice that barely raised above a whisper and no one could have heard those verses anyway.

I don't know about other people but I never would have made it through school without prayer. My mother prayed a lot. And so did my dad. And pretty soon I found out that prayer does a lot for one when faced with a geometry test, and one doesn't know anything about geometry.

I was in the 10th grade, and my teacher was Miss Wittiman. She was tall and full-bosomed and she wore glasses that slid down her nose and she would have to tilt her head upwards to see downwards through the glasses.

Miss Wittiman also had a very severe mouth.

One day she sprang a surprise test on us. And, naturally, I was unprepared. Actually, I was usually unprepared when it came to geometry. All those triangles I think.

I looked over the test and I knew immediately that it was going to take a higher power to pull me through. Down went my head on arms on my desk, and I sent up a cry for help.

I had complete faith that God would not have anything else to do but listen to a 10th grader who hadn't been studying, yelling for help. And apparently he wasn't busy right at that moment, because he heard, and he answered, just like I knew he would.

I sailed through that test.
The next day Miss Wittiman stood before our class, tall and severe. "I pulled a surprise test yesterday," she said. "And I deliber-

"I pulled a surprise test yesterday," she said. "And I deliberately put in a problem I knew you couldn't solve. I wanted to see how many would try . . . and how." She paused and looked around the room.

"Three of you solved it!"

It sounded almost like an accusation, rather than a glad acclaiming.

"I knew that Glenn would be able to solve it," she continued, beaming at the math genius in our class. His Adam's apple went up and down and he jerked his head and batted his eyes.

"I suspect I know how Roberta solved it," she continued, staring at Roberta who sat behind Glenn. Everyone knew that Glenn would sell his soul for Roberta and they figured this was one time he had done it.

Roberta hung her head and Glenn's Adam's Apple did a regular dance, up and down, up and down.

Miss Wittiman stared at them for awhile and then she turned her eyes across the room to me. "Joyce?" she said.

I gulped and looked around. How does a teenager say she prayed and God answered her prayer?

I didn't say anything. Finally the hour was over, but I was sad. Somehow I felt I had let God down. There he had solved that problem for me, and I hadn't been able to acknowledge it.

I grabbed my books and hugged them to me while I waited for the room to empty. Only then did I go up to Miss Wittiman.

"Miss Wittiman," I said in a tiny voice that kept trying to hide behind my teeth. "I prayed about that problem, and God answered my prayer."

Tears sprang in the teacher's eyes, and she leaned over and hugged me to her, and I knew she understood.

Maybe Madeline Murray O'Hair ought to try prayer sometime. She might find out how easy it is to believe.

'Take a letter'—obsolete?

Since this is National Secretary's Week anyway, can we talk a little about shorthand?

First, let me start off by saying that my entire experience with shorthand consists of four days of it in Miss Brown's class in the tenth grade—after which I could see clearly that Gregg's method and me (I?) weren't compatible and I transferred to General Business, instead.

There have been times since then when I was sorry I didn't try dead in my tape recorder.

The key word here is "tape recorder". Since it's introduction to the business world, I can't for the life of me see why anyone would need shorthand to take notes or to take dictation.

A person can transcribe from a recorded tape faster than he or she can take notes in shorthand and then transcribe the notes. Taking a telephone message in shorthand means you have to rewrite the message in longhand in order for the recipient to be able to read it.

As for the person doing the dictating, he or she can do it — and correct the errors — much faster with a tape recorder than by dictating to someone sitting there pencil on a steno pad.

And twenty minutes later, if the dictator (well, what else would you call that person?)
should change his or her mind about a certain phrase or sentence, he or she can erase that portion of the tape and reword it without ever bothering the

The dictator can even do his work at home or in his car or on the bus if the mood strikes. He's not limited to the hours the secretary is at his side.

It's just so much easier talking into a machine — and yet there are still big, technologically sophisticated companies who won't hire a secretary unless she can prove she's a whiz at shorthand.

But there's another side to this

But there's another side to this shorthand thing, too. I once took a very short, informal poll of secretaries who had hired into companies requiring shorthand. Five of the six secretaries I asked said that once they had been hired, they were never asked to use it. They all transcribed from tapes, instead.

So what's the reason for requiring shorthand? Well, this is just my own theory, mind you, but I suspect an ego trip. Why else would a person insist that another person be at his beck and call whenever he wants to spout a few phrases? When he could more easily spout them into a machine? And when he knows that the secretary has more important things to do?

The auto companies, I hear, are still the most adamant about requiring shorthand. It seems incredible that a company can come up with a car that will remind you (in a man's or woman's voice, yet) that you left your lights on, but can't get it through it's head that saying "take a letter" to a person holding a steno pad is about as old-fashioned as having the car horn still say, "A-OO-gah".

Oh, by the way, speaking of auto companies — I had heard once that the secretaries for the big execs at Ford's must assume the last names of their bosses so that everybody knows who belongs to whom. Thus, Mr. Jones would hire a Ms. Smith to be his secretary and she would then, for the eight hours she was at work, become Ms. Jones. Can anyone confirm or deny that story? I heard it from the wife of a big exec there, and she swore it was true. Was it? Is it still?

When I was in high school, I used to hang around with a guy named, "Pete". who was about three feet tall. Pete was one of my best friends. Pete would even cry when I would have to go somewhere

Consequently, I rarely went anywhere without him. One of Pete's favorite pastimes was standing up on the front seat of my 57 Chevy (there will never be another set of wheels like it) while I put the 327 cubic inch road-eating monster through a series of mechanical muscle

Twenty years later. Pete. my little brother, is now a 23 year old medical student, and I'm a physician who hardly ever drives faster than 50 miles per hour (I use to be able to get 50 miles per hour out of first gear in the good old American graffiti days)

How lucky I was that nobody ever pulled out in front of me while I careened down the highway at 100 miles per hour with my three year old brother standing beside me screaming, "Faster! Faster

In the past ten years, I have had the unfortunate experience of having to tell parents that their beautiful two or three year old child died in a car crash mainly because he was not restrained.

Remember, all unrestrained objects in a car which crashes bounce off everything in the cockpit of the car. This includes children.

An infant skull, brain, and other vital parts are no match for a 30 or 40 mile per hour crash into a dashboard. On April 1st, a child seat belt law went into effect in Michigan

Let me take this opportunity to plead with you — please restrain your children in a car for at least three reasons:

(1) You - how could you ever live with the fact that a child was maimed or killed because you didn't take the seven seconds required to fasten it in a car seat or car belt.

(2) Your child — who would you have to snuggle up next to you at night, and kiss you good-by, and beg you to tell them another bedtime story, and get them another glass of water, and ask you why the sky is blue, and ask you why baby brother or baby sister has different factory specifications.

And (3) ME - please have some sensitivity to my feelings. I always cry when I have to tell somebody that they will never see their baby again.

Special skill:

The sound of Willie Nelson filled the room. Sitting in the corner, Russell Marshall whistled along as the Country Western giant's rendition of "Walkin in the Winter Wonderland" blared from the stereo.

His distinctive whistling, piped into an intricate sound system, meshed well with the lyrics. Better than the background music that originally accompanied Nelson on the album, actually.

Marshall's ability to whistle a tune is no accident. Since the age of five - "I whistled an opera" - he has been refining his skills through hours of practice and live perform-

"A lotta people whistle or do bird calls," admitted Marshall, who has thousands of songs in his whistling repertoire. "But most of them only know a part of a tune, not the whole

> "I've whistled at various churches during the past nine years," explained the 57-year-old Westland resident. "I had hoped that people would come to church to hear me whistle and to hear the gospel. I wanted to be the bait that brought people to church but I became the attraction and that bothered me.

'They started coming to be entertained, not to hear God's message. I used to whistle for churches twice or three times a month but I've cut back."

His biggest supporter? It's Marshall's wife, Ada.

'He whistles with personality," she declared in describing the talent of her Windsor born husband.

"He practices sometimes for hours at a time because he's such a perfectionist.

Marshall, who has also whistled on the radio (station WMUZ) and at convalescent homes, hopes to use his ability to raise funds for a radio ministry world wide. He wants to provide background whistling for commercials to support his dream.

"Music, like math, is a common denominator," he explained. "I believe that a radio ministry deserves our support:

Employed as an automobile inspector at General Motors for 25 years, the entertainer perfects his skill at least three times a week, listening to tapes and whistling melodies ranging from Brahms' "Messiah" to a Country Western version of "White Christmas."

"Whistling brings out my emotions, it's a mental tranquilizer," said Marshall. "I can get the pitch as high as a flute or organ can play - sometimes I amaze myself. It's relaxing, a diversion . . . and I don't have to buy batteries.'

Taking care of an identity crisis

JOAN ARMATRADING "Walk Under Ladders" (A&M)

Despite a succession of critically well-received LPs, it wasn't until 1980's 'Me Myself album that Joan Armatrading began to reach the mass market of American record buyers.

And even then people would saunter into their local record store and inquire "Who's the guy that sings 'Me Myself I'?" Yep, the voice is deep and so are her songs, but the release of "Walk Under Ladders" should adeptly take care of the identity crisis surrounding the British singer/ songwriter/guitarist

In what seems a most unlikely coupling, Armatrading has chosen Steve Lilywhite as producer this time around, a man best known for his work with progressive rockers U2, The Psychedelic Furs, and XTC. But the end result is not only Joan's best album to date, but also one of the best LPs of the year.

Lillywhite's crisp, clean touch at the boards, coupled with the musicians he brought in (XTC's Andy Partridge, Brit synth whiz Thomas Dolby, and first-rate sax player Mel Collins to name a few), perfectly compliment Armatrading's songs, which are her most melodious yet. To have lyrics as introspective, honest, and interesting as these would be enough, but when the tunes would stand on their own as a dance record, well, that's rare.

'When I Get It Right" has gotten considerable radio airplay already, as has the video of the song on cable's MTV. It's a marvelous monologue of a woman tired of being on the losing end of a relationship where she's always found fault with, so she asks, with tongue firmly in cheek: "Hey when I get it right/Will you tell me please/I wanna know"

Joan's own style transforms what could easily have been a typical gooey, too-sweet love song into an innovative, spirited romp on "I Wanna Hold You," where her phrasing becomes the key, accenting each and every word on the entire middle section.

Ah, but love, as we all know, isn't always the proverbial bowl of cherries. Armatrading knows this too, as she sings in "Romancer"

'I'm living in a fool's paradise I'm Living on false hope And lies I'm gonna be rejected Let down Expect it I'm living in a fool's paradise"

Other highlights include "I'm Lucky," from whence comes the LP's title, the bouncy "At The Hop," and "Eating The Bear," which is the positive side of the old expression "Sometimes you eat the bear, sometimes the bear eats you." And it's hard to think of a lines more open than those heard in "No Love," where Joan sings "You started out/Wanting my body/And I didn't mind/ 'Cos we liked each other.'

Anniversary celebration includes free dinner on Sunday

By DENNIS NIEMIEC Feature Editor

Tom Christopoulos, owner of Tom's Tavern in Wayne, literally grew up in the restaurant business.

As a youngster in Baltimore, he lived with his family upstairs from his grandfather Tom's thriving restaurant. Later the family built up a successful eatery - Chris' Coney Island — which today has locations in Redford, run by his father, Louis, and another in Plymouth, managed by brother Dean.

Since 1918, in fact, a restaurant has been a vital part of the Christopoulos family. And this Sunday Tom will celebrate his tavern's third anniversary at 32413 Michigan Ave. (between Venoy and Merriman). From 5 to 7 p.m. he's offering a full buffet dinner for the public at no charge with entertainment to

"We had always worked as a family in the (restaurant) business," Christopoulos explained. "but I wanted to try something on my own. I liked a place where I could serve a good ground round or a coney and have a good sports

"This is not a shot and a beer type of bar," added the owner, who resides with his wife, Ann, in Wayne. "It's an all-around bar for young and old, white and blue collar workers.

Tom's Tavern features many of the standard highlights of the bar scene — the pool tables, the video games, the juke box, the seven-foot screen, the Happy Hour (drinks at half price from 4 to 7 p.m. Monday thru Saturday) and the Ladies Night (half-price discounts from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. every Thursday).

Then there are the special highlights that separate this cozy spot from many of its counterparts the menu and the friendliness.

There's the Greek Taco ($1.25), a ground burger on a hot dog bun with for me. I believe in goodwill, in chili, shredded cheese, lettuce, tomatoes and onions. Or the family trade secret - that Coney Island topped with chili, shredded cheese and onions on a steamed bun. When the Tigers are playing, a coney sells for an unbelievable 25 cents, a Tom's Tavern tradition.

Other menu items include wing dings ($1.50), shrimp and chips ($3.75), a loose burger ($1.15), 1/2 pound ground round ($2.25), sixounce steak sandwich ($3.75), ham and cheese sandwich ($1.75), fish sandwich ($1.25), onion rings (85 cents), fries (75 cents) and mushrooms (95 cents)

As for the atmosphere, Christopoulos has a simple philosophy.

'I never like to think of this as MY bar," he emphasized. "Without my help-people like Barbara O'Leary and my cousin. Tom - and my customers I wouldn't have anything

It doesn't mean being alone

ANP Staff Writer

"Any woman not happy in her marriage should do something about it." That advice comes from one who should know. She is a happily married young woman who spends a great deal of her time occupied with the trauma of divorce. She's seen and heard more about divorce from experts on the issues and women experiencing the realities of the situation than most ever imagine.

She is Susan Cadwell, the facilitator and leader of a divorce support group for women called "phoenix" sponsored by the YWCA in this area. Mrs. Caldwell doesn't necessarily feel that divorce is the answer for women who are unhappy — but she does feel that anyone unhappy should take a good, hard, objective look at the situation and make some changes. Sometimes, she suggested, the problem can be solved with something as simple as finding a job, quitting a job, losing weight or anything else that might be the cause of the dissatisfaction. "I look at it this way. We only go around once in this life - why go around unhappily. We could be dead tomorrow.

"I don't consider myself an advocate of divorce, but I am an advocate of good relationships. Whatever it takes to make them, do it," she said.

And if that is divorce, as it is in many cases, Mrs. Cadwell and "pheonix" are there to help women cope with the problems that arise with the severing of the relationship.

The group, as Mrs. Cadwell describes it, functions as a support system for women who are going through or even considering divorce as a means to better their situations.

'It's a way to share feelings, discuss concerns and issues with other women going through the same or a similar process," Mrs. Cadwell, who has a masters degree in guidance and counseling, explained.

The group is also an invaluable aid in gaining information and obtaining resources, she added. Once a month an outside speaker will address the group on issues such as legalities, finances, psychology, assertiveness, children in divorce or any concern the women in the group might voice. "Whatever they tell us they need to know, whatever topics seem to concern them, we try to find a speaker expert in that area to talk to them," Mrs. Cadwell explained.

The group meets on the first and third Thursdays of the month and Mrs. Cadwell estimates the present Canton group attendance at about 18 women. She stressed that while the meetings are held in Canton, the members are from several surrounding communities. The Canton group is only one year old while other chapters of the "phoenix" organization in Livonia and Taylor have been in existence for a number of years.

"I'm not an advisor or a counselor to these women," Mrs. Cadwell explained. "My role is as a facilitator. I'm not a divorce counselor or a lawyer. I'm more a sounding board for the women — I work to get discussion going and to bring out their own feelings and values and to help them share their own experiences.

'From that support group many of them find the energy to pursue their goals. Because they find they are not alone, many women are stronger and better able to handle the divorce experience," she said.

"Get involved. Don't go through this alone. Find a support group through your church, friends, job or relatives. It's important for women to have a support system."

— Susan Cadwell

"I think all the outside systems involved in a persons life are factors in a divorce. If it weren't for all those outside factors people might stay married and plod along unhappily for 50 years." - Susan Cadwell

"In a divorce make sure that you and your lawyer are on the same wave length. Ask him everything on your mind. There are millions of lawyers. If you aren't happy with one, chuck it and find another."

- Susan Cadwell

Mrs. Cadwell admits to having some trepidation at first about taking on her role in the group. She had, she admitted, some fears that because she isn't divorced, hasn't been through the experience herself, the women might not accept her in her role at the group sessions.

'They did though and now I really enjoy the group. I'm learning about divorce but I'm learning more about women. Even though we're all going through crisis, we are all women first and we all share the same feelings, the same concerns," she said.

While her role, she repeatedly stressed, is not that of a lawyer or divorce counselor, she does have some strong advice for women going through the experience of divorce.

'Get involved, don't go through this alone. Find a support system through your church, friends, job or relatives. It is important for every woman to have some type of support system anyway. It could be different for everyone, but it is important. It's important because then you are not

Her second piece of advice concerns the legal aspects of divorce. She strongly suggests that women find an attorney they respect and in whom they have confidence.

'Many women don't realize they don't have to end up with the same attorney they begin with. Make sure you and your lawyer are on the same wave length. There are millions of lawyers, if you aren't happy with one, chuck it and get another one.

This lawyer is supposed to represent you so he's got to know what you want. Don't be afraid to ask him anything. Even if you might think it's foolish, ask. If you don't like the answer, ask another lawyer.

'Most lawyers don't charge too much for the initial interview or for a phone call. Interview the attorney and make sure you're happy with him. Remember, your attorney isn't God, don't be afraid to question him."

Mrs. Cadwell is also concerned that many women really don't understand their legal rights in the divorce process and allow things to happen that make the experience even more painful than necessary. She explained that many women have husbands living in the home until the final decree, not knowing that they can obtain an injunction requiring the spouse to leave.

Information such as that comes from attorneys and legal experts who speak to the groups and dispell much of the misinformation many women have regarding divorce, Mrs. Cadwell noted.

But even that, she feels, is secondary to the feeling of security women obtain from the group experience. Many women find they are sharing the same situations and concerns, particularly about their children and can learn from others. The phrase, "he did that to you, too," she said, is often

'Recently two women at group discovered that their husbands had been having affairs and both handled it in the same manner. They didn't throw him out or ask him to leave but chose to accept the situation and friends and relatives made them feel guilty for their actions. Discovering that another woman had handled it the same way really helped them feel okay," Mrs. Cadwell said. Being an okay person is important when going through a crisis. People start to question a lot of things and question themselves. Is there something wrong with me, am I weird? They feel unattractive and guilty for doing this to their children. 'They need to know whatever they do, it's okay. It's important to feel okay. Many women feel guilty whether they are seeking the divorce or not. They need to know, whatever you do, you're okay," she added.

'I think all the outside systems involved in a person's life are factors in a divorce. If it weren't for the outside factors people might plod along unhappily married to the same person for 50 years.

Unemployment in the country today, the staying young syndrome, women in the working world, good homes and striving for success - any of those can be the major factor in many cases.

'If we didn't have these outside systems to interfere we wouldn't go out to discover another life.

'It's okay today to get a divorce, there is no stigma. Once you get married, it's not forever," she said.

'The phoenix group acts as a support system for women- it's important for women to have the support system for anything," Mrs. Cadwell

The groups meet from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m. at Geneva Presbyterian Church on Sheldon Road north of Ford Road in Canton on the first and third Thursdays of the month. Groups also meet in Livonia and Taylor and on Tuesdays from 1 until 3 p.m. at the YWCA Family Center on Michigan

Strawberry classic with new twist

Ah, spring! It brings back sunshine and warm days, the first green shoots on barren trees, blossoming flowers... and lots of juicy, red-ripe strawberries!

Of all the long-anticipated pleasures of spring, nothing is more wonderful than the taste of ripe strawberries, the first fresh fruit of the season. When those baskets of plump strawberries add their bright, berry-red color to the supermarket produce counter, it's a sure sign that spring is finally here.

The first baskets disappear quickly for eating just as is or dipping luxuriously in sour cream and brown sugar. Then all the favorite recipes begin to appear, and it's time for classic strawberry shortcakes, strawberry pies and other timehonored recipes.

This is the time to discover some new strawberry favorites, too, like Strawberry Shortcake Sabayon, a classic shortcake with a new twist. Instead of the usual shortcake split lengthwise and sandwiches with berries, a rich, buttery cake, baked in a bundt pan or ring mold, is sliced into wedges and the sugared berries spooned on top.

There's more than ordinary whipped cream in this version. The cake is topped with a frothy Sabayon Sauce, made with egg yolks, sugar and cream sherry beaten to airy lightness and folded into whipped cream. The result is heavenly and makes a spectacular dessert for company.

For Strawberry Shortcake Sabayon or any other strawberry dessert, be sure to select bright red berries since strawberries will not ripen further after being picked. The best berries are plump and well rounded, with a natural shine, rich red color and bright green, fresh-looking caps. Use strawberries as soon after purchase as possible for the best flavor and appearance and the best nutritional content.

Store strawberries in the refrigerator and wash just before using. Rinse berries gently in a collander or large strainer. Remove caps after washing and just before using to prevent water from soaking into the berries. diluting the flavor and changing their texture

Beautification project

Time for 'Trash-A-Thon'

The long, bitter winter has left its scar on the landscape, the city.

Now, the Romulus Beautification Committee, is inviting you to remove the debris that is marring the landscape. They're promoting a "Romulus Trash-A-Thon" next month.

The dates for the beautification drive are May 15 through 22, which is the same week that the state will hold it annual Michigan Week cere-

"We're asking and urging all community groups to get involved," said Nanett Paladino, one of the chairpersons of the project. "We'll be picking up trash from the streets, parks and public areas.

"These volunteer groups will seek sponsors throughout the community to donate money to their group for each bag of trash filled and disposed of. The money collected will belong to the group to be used as it sees fit."

However, trash bags will be supplied by the Romulus Beautification committee for $12.50 per 100.

Mrs. Paladino pointed out the purpose of the project has two obvious reasons: it will help clean up the community of the debris; and it will also convey a sense of pride, accomplishment and community togetherness in the residents. Local organizations that are interested in participating in the project should contact the Romulus Beautification Committee on or before April 30. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Mark or Nanette Paladino at 941-9177. The Beautification Committee will hold its next meeting at 7 p.m., May 3 at 13541 Huron River Drive.

1. Motion by Lewkowicz, supported by Lambert, to approve the Agenda as presented

2. Consent Agenda - No action. Petitioners - none.

4. CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

Chairperson Mary Ann Banks submitted two Resolutions to the City Council protesting rising tax assessments for the Council's concurrence. Councilman Raspberry made a motion that was to be in conjunction with the Chair's Resolution.

Motion by Raspberry, supported by Lambert to adopt a Resolution in opposition to Rising Tax Assessments.

RESOLUTION 82-098 RESOLUTION IN OPPOSITION TO

RISING TAX ASSESSMENTS WHEREAS: The Western Wayne County area in general, and the City of Romulus in particular, are confronted with very difficult economic times, and The City of Romulus, despite a recent city-wide reassessment WHEREAS:

program, is still under pressure to acknowledge specious growing property values, and The assignment of increased valuation to property in the City WHEREAS:

of Romulus is totally inequitable due to its unique location and substantially adverse valuation circumstances, including, but not limited to, the following: (a) Metropolitan airport totally within boundaries of the City.

(b) Outmoded and inadequate sewer system service. (c) The city is intersected by two (2), heavily traveled, interstate highways

(d) Many of our residential homes are still served only by septic tanks, well water, and unimproved private roads. (e) A large percentage of this community is comprised of older homes, with substandard construction, and occupied by families where the major breadwinner is unemployed and unable to bring the homes up to marketable standards.

MCLA 211.34 requires the County Board of Commissioners to WHEREAS: meet, pursuant to Public Act 267 (1978), and determine county equalization value based upon principals, uniformity of assessment, and equality of tax burden, and Any increase in assessment to homes in this community is WHEREAS: based upon a statistically insignificant sampling of the residential homes in the city. A large number of sales are represented by purchases by the Wayne County Road Commission whose purposes are not easily categorized as residential or commercial in use for valuation purposes, this minimal sampling may more likely be reflective of the saleability of small portions of prime lots rather than an across the board valuation increase, and the number of arms length transactions is not sufficient to determine a trend in valuation, and WHEREAS The soil quality and high water table further cause an uncertainty of valuation in this community, and WHEREAS The economic plight and onerous tax burden in this community is reflected by the fact that there are currently between 300-500 lots to be sold for tax deficiencies this year, and The failure/inability to weigh this multitude of factors has WHEREAS:

rendered uniformity of evaluation practically impossible to NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED: That based upon the foregoing factors and considerations, the Romulus City Council urges the Wayne County Board of Commissioners to reject the pending tices that are being visited upon the citizens of Romulus during these difficult times of financial turmoil BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this Resolution be forwarded to: Wayne County Board of Commissioners, Taxation Committee, Rep. Taste Marvel!

Latest research confirms MERIT delivers the taste of cigarettes having up to twice the tar.

Many low tar cigarettes make taste promises. But only 'Enriched Flavor', MERIT offers proof not promises. Proof through extensive smoker taste tests.

MERIT Taste Does It.

In impartial new tests where brand identity was concealed, the overwhelming majority of smokers reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands. Even brands with up to twice the tar.

Moreover, when tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

MERIT Taste Sparks Switch.

In a separate part of this extensive new study, MERIT smokers report that taste is a major factor in completing their successful switch from higher tar brands.

Confirmed: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers say MERIT is an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Their stats in the first half weren't all that impressive, but when it came down to the final score, the Westland Sparks wheelchair basketball team was able to edge out the Casa Colina (Calif.) Condors by oints to win their seventh

For the Sparks this avenges their loss to the Condors in the semifinals last year, when the national tournament was hosted by the City of Westland.

The team was down by four points at the half, and according to guard Joe Sutika, shot only 20 percent during the two 15-minute periods. However, an emotional halftime speech by coach Bud Rumple literally sparked the team on to take the lead in the opening moments of the

The Sparks' victory snapped the Condors' 72-game winning streak and capped an undefeated season, with the Sparks posting a 31-0 sea-

The seven national titles is the most eyer amassed by a wheelchair basketball team, and according to Sutika, "it feels good."

"In the past few years we've eaten a lot of criticism about our play in the finals, and we really wanted to end the speculation that the Sparks was a team that once was," he explained. "We wanted to let them know we're the best."

And the Sparks, indeed, proved they were the best, with five of the 12-member team being named to the first and second All-American teams. First team members included Sutika, forward Leon Sturtz

Phillips and Barnum were high scorers in the championship game, while Waller amassed 19 rebounds and eight points. However, Sutika pointed out that the game represented the Sparks' best team playing in the last three years, with each individual player doing what they did best in the regular season.

"We lost to Casa Colina by one point in the semis last year, so this was a big revenge thing this year," he said. "We were ranked second in the country, and both teams were undefeated.

The Sparks supposedly were underdogs going into the championship, with oddsmakers picking the Condors by four points. However, Sutika said Fans were favoring the Sparks because "they believed we had the better team...and we

The championship was played April 9-1 in Minneapolis, Minn., with the Indiana Olympians, Condors, Sparks and Music City Wheelers from Nashville surviving the sectional competition.

The Olympians and Wheelers were surprise teams in the semifinals, with neither team having been expected to survive the sectionals. With the Sparks netting the national crown, and the Condors placing second in the nation, a consolation game between the Wheelers and Olympians decided the third-place team. That turned out to be the Wheelers.

The Sparks play out of the Bailey Recreation Center in Westland, and the effects of the economy has left the champs shouldering a large portion of the cost of competing throughout the country, costs that at one time were financed through gate receipts.

Sutika hopes that attendance will increase next season, so that the team doesn't have to depend so heavily on Bingos and dances to cover some of the expenses.

Until then the team will be resting on its laurels and getting ready for the 35th national tournament, which will be played on the Condors' home turf in Casa Colina.

Mothers protest child care closing

By SUE BACHAND ANP Staff Writer

More than 20 concerned mothers, toddlers in tow, confronted Wayne County Community College Dean Julius Brown Monday to officially express their dismay regarding the proposed closing of the child care facilities at the college.

Presenting Brown with a letter from a newly organized group, Parent Club Action Group, the parents expressed their disagreement with the manner in which the closings have been handled and officially requested a re-evaulation of the recent decision.

While Brown accepted the letter and told the group he, "shared their concerns" he suggested that his action would be a referral of the letter to the director of student 'services at the Western campus.

Noticeably agitated, several of the mothers later spoke about their concerns and their conviction that the contracting or vending out of the child care service would be detrimental to the children in the program but would also, they claim, immediately cut into enrollment at the school. While no official notice of any intent to close the service has been received, co-ordinator of child care at the western campus, Patrick Caraher explained that the vote to close the service with a consideration to possibly vend it out was held at a meeting of the college board of trustees late in March. According to minutes of the meeting, the vote was affirmative.

"They are voting to close the facility without even investigating the service or the options," noted student Catalina Hall, a Belleville resident. "They did suggest in the vote a consideration to vend out the service, but that isn't the quality of care we want for our kids.

The parents are concerned, explained Donna Bauslaugh of Canton, with the type and quality of child care provided by an outside vendor or child care facility which might be allowed at the school. Presently, Ms. Bauslaugh explained, the school is responsible for the administration of the child care facility and the children are left with qualified instructors and teachers. The child care center now provides an education for the children, not just a babysitting ser

"We want a qualified staff, a certified staff for our kids," explained student Vicki Ross. "These kids are people too, and they deserve a good start," she

They want child care

Catalina Hall presents Dean Julius Brown of Wayne County Community College the official letter of protest prepared by the Parent Club Action Group concerning the proposed closing of child care facilities at the Western campus. The parents and children requested a re-evaluation of the decision to close the facility.

Ms. Hall explained that as a single parent of an exceptionally bright child, she could not afford to seek alternative child care and continue her education in computer programming. "It is a truism of life that I have to work, I have to go to school and I have to care for my son. I am presently on a grant, but a vendor would not accept those payments for child care," she said. The women also expressed their concern for the number of Department of Social Selrvice students at the school who utilize the child care facility. It was their understanding, they said, that an outside agent would not accept the social service payments for child care.

"We have so many students here who are working their tails off to get off ADC and back into the work force, and this is a real setback," Ms. Hall said.

According to the parent group, the service began operation in October and then serviced about 20 families. Since then the attendance at the child care facility has tripled with more than 60 families now utilizing the service at the Western campus on a regular basis.

"We just don't want babysitters in there," Ms. Ross said.
"We want our kids educated."

The women further explained that it was a certainty that enrollment in classes at the facility would drop when the child care facilities closed and a strong probability if the service was, in act, assumed by an outside contractor with the college.

More than 500 families at the four campuses of Wayne County Community College would be affected by such a decision, the women explained.

During the meeting with Brown, Bauslaugh requested a copy of the college budget so the group could ascertain the exact financial status of the child care facility which has been characterized as a loss for the college. While Brown urged the women to accept the decision as "cost efficient" he said he could not provide them with the budget information.

They are irate that they have no means of determining if in fact the service is draining college funds.

"Unofficially, there has not been an internal audit of this campus in more than two years," Ms. Hall said. "How do we know the facility is not cost efficient? There are many offices here which do not show a profit. Certainly administration does not show a profit, maybe we should eliminate that," she suggested facetiously

"Our kids are every bit as important as the landscaping,' commented Ms. Ross, noting that there was a great deal of gardening and landscaping work continually performed at the facility; and the women also noted the presence of parking lot guards paid by the college.

"All we're saying is that we deserve the information in the budget to know if we're really cost efficient or not-maybe there are other places cuts could be made." Ross added.

Caraher explained that he and coordinators from the other campuses had sent a letter to the administrators of the college last week asking for action on the proposed cuts in the program, but as yet had received no re-

Caraher admitted that he felt the mothers had a viable argument in their opposition to an outside contractor providing child care. "I think a vendor could not operate a program such as ours because we're a service oriented program and service oriented programs are not profit making. In the long run, to make a profit, they have to cut services and programs for the children," Caraher said.

The mothers allege that an outside contractor would provide care for children over 21/2 years of age and demand that the participants be toilet trained before accepting them. They are also concerned that the food program at the facility would no longer be available to the children.

"Right now," noted Ms. Hall, "they take children from 2 months up to 12 years and they are providing the food for the children-and it's a good, nutritious diet. I just don't feel any vendor will offer that.'

"My personal opinion is that somewhere in this bureaucracy there is a politician who knows someone interested in operating the child care program. I do suspect that," she said.

The mothers group, along with groups from the other three campuses, will be marching downtown next week and then marching into the meeting of the college board of trustees scheduled for April 28.

"We are going to ask for the budget then as Brown suggested," Bauslaugh said.

"I just wonder which programs would be cut if these kids could vote." mused Ms. Ross. "they're the adults of tomorrow."

Hart Plaza is ready for ethnic festivals

Acting on a resolution proposed by Wayne County Commissioner Paul G. Citkowski, the County Board of Commissioners last week voted unanimously for restoring the 11:30 a.m. starting time of Detroit's summer ethnic festivals on Fridays at Hart Plaza on the downtown riverfront.

Citkowski's proposal and the Board's endorsement is part of a surging opposition after the City previously announced last week that it was changing the starting time to 2:00 p.m., to accommodate complaining restaurateurs who said the earlier time hurt their lunch business

The resolution urges "all appropriate" City of Detroit officials, including Mayor Coleman A. Young and members of City Council "to take all possible steps toward the objective of continuing the 11:30 a.m. Friday starting time.

Citkowski explained after approval of the resolution, "Only the City of Detroit is empowered to make the changes, but I want it made clear that Wayne County officials want the 11:30 hour back in place.

Since the change of starting time to the disputed 2:00 p.m., after most downtown workers have had their midday meal, numbers of petitions are circulating in various office buildings in protest, Citkowski pointed out. "Apparently, many hundreds — if not thousands — of people employed and visiting downtown feel the same sense of outrage as I do. If allowed to continue, the 2:00 o'clock restriction destroys a summer enjoyment that we have been anticipating all winter," Citkowski declared.

"I can't believe the selfishness exhibited here," Citkowski continued. "Surely the restaurant owners know, as all the restof us do, that they actually benefit from the festivals. The festivals are the major downtown attraction during the summer all weekend, every weekend, not just for two hours on Friday." He said further: The summer festivals are a big boom in the downtown Detroit revitalization that benefits all businesses there. Students, conventioneers, and other visitors congregate there all weekend as well as workers who eat lunch on Fridays.

"In my opinion and now the opinion expressed by county government the festivals should be applauded and encouraged to expand. not penalized. Too many people come downtown to experience the festivals, then spend the rest of the day shopping, exploring or attending movies or the theatre, and that is important business too.'

The first of the 17 festivals scheduled begins on April 30 and continues into mid-September.

Apportionment ruling soon?

The Michigan Supreme Court has stayed a 12-day ruling by the State Court of Appeals requiring the Wayne County Apportionment Commission to submit another redistricting proposal and, instead, will hold its own hearing on the matter April 20.

The Holley plan, first submitted by the Apportionment Commission January 12th, was contested by the communities of Dearborn, Dearborn Heights and Westland and the Michigan Court of Appeals, following a three-judge panel review, sent the plan back last week because it was not considered within correct population guidelines.

County Prosecutor Wulliam L. Cahalan, a member of the Apportionment Commission, appealed the Appellate Court's decision to the Michigan Supreme Court and the appeal was granted Friday after-
